PREFACE.

It is three years since the last State census was taken, and the results of it have but just been given to the public in book-form, yet only thirty days have elapsed since we commenced taking the annual census of the City of New York, and we now present the result in a volume of 885 pages, containing the names and residences of every housekeeper and business firm, and permanent resident in the city, making 139,804 names.

To collect this immense amount of information, to arrange it all in systematic order, put it in type, and publish it in book-form, in the brief space of one month, every one will admit must be a work of great labor, and requiring the systematic co-operation of an immense number of intelligent minds and expert hands. It is only those who have participated in this labor who can form any adequate idea of its magnitude, or of the perplexities connected with it. In the preparation and compiling of all other books, some assistance may be gained by the labors of others in the same field, but in making up the Directory the work has to be begun anew each year, and every fact must be obtained from original sources. Nothing can be surmised, nor copied from other directories. The Directory for 1858–9 is an entirely original production. The 139,804 names which it contains, have all been gathered afresh, and, owing to the great changes which have been made in the business firms of the city, ...nt upon the commercial revulsion of last Fall, there has ...ver before been a directory issued which differed so ...redecessor as the present one.

...llude to these facts for the purpose of magnifying ...f the work, for that is a point which will be readily ...who have occasion to use it, nor as an apology for ...r its cheapness must be as manifest as its useful- ... satisfaction of the by no means inconsiderable ... it to be their duty to pick out all the little errors they can find, and to exaggerate their importance. It is the conduct of these querulous people that forms one of the most formidable and embarrassing obstacles to the perfect consummation of our object in preparing the Directory. They not only refuse to give the information required of them, but afterwards are the first to complain of any inaccuracies that we may fall into through their perverse opposition. It would be an almost endless task to describe the capricious opposition with which we have to contend in obtaining the information required to make the work as correct as we aim to render it, or to give a tolerable idea of the vexatious criticisms to which we are afterwards exposed. The great majority of people, we are happy to say, very obligingly give to our collectors all the information they require, but there are many who try in every possible manner to defeat the objects at which we aim. Mr. A., for example, not only refuses to give the required particulars about himself, but positively forbids the insertion of his name and residence in the Directory. No doubt Mr. A. has very cogent reasons for wishing to remain incog., and to keep his whereabouts a profound secret, but we cannot afford to aid him in his designs. It is our business to have his address in the Directory; and if we do not obtain it from him, we must from some one else. No Mr. A. has yet succeeded in depriving us of the information we desire.

Mr. B. has a similar desire to keep himself out of the Directory or at least feigns to have, and when the work appears, forgetting his little eccentricity in denying the anxiously sought information he boils over with indignation because his name does not figure in its pages.

Mr. C., who fills the useful and honorable position of a clerk in a store, insists on being inserted as "a gentleman," and, as might be expected of persons of such ambitious aspirations, is extremely abusive because he cannot be gratified. But, it being the ... the Directory to give the sternest facts, and to repress ... the imagination, Mr. C. has to figure in its pages ... he can establish his claim to some better designa...

Mr. D. wishes his name inserted in a mar... self, and particularly bothering to every one ... tory being the most democratic of all hum... must take his place on the dead level of the ... D. cannot distinguish himself by any such ...

Mr. E. has his little peculiarities, and an... any information about himself, unless he ca... a page to spread himself in, with miscellan...

ness. But Mr. E.'s economical ideas of advertising have to be nipped in the bud.

Mr. F. is frugal in an opposite direction, and forbids any mention of his business.

Mr. G. cannot understand what right any one can have to know where he resides, and will not divulge the fact. He thinks it a piece of impertinence to publish a Directory at all.

Mr. H. is horrified at the omission of his place of residence, regards it as "a perfect outrage," and has no doubt it was done on purpose to annoy him.

Mr. I. is slightly insane on the subject of his first name. He objects vehemently to the insertion of any thing more than the initial, because there happen to be two or three more persons who are called Isaac besides himself.

Mr. J. objects to advertisements in the Directory, and can't see what they are put in for.

Mr. K., contrariwise, likes advertisements, and considers them "a pleasant feature" of the work.

Mr. L., with the lofty tone of a critic, pronounces the work "full of blunders," and being requested to designate them, that they may be corrected, is unable to point out even one.

Mr. M., being of a mirthful disposition, gives the canvasser who calls upon him a direction which, if followed, would subject us to a libel suit.

Mr. N., who resides in the city, when called upon at his place of business, gives an out-of-town residence, under the delusive idea that he will thereby escape jury duty or taxation.

Mr. O. desires the canvasser to call again, and the canvasser forgetting to do it, Mr. O. threatens a suit for damages because he is left out.

Mr. P. lives in a "Place," which has no legalized existence. The name of the street he lives in not being odorous, he wishes to get rid of it without removing, and ingeniously calls his block a Place, and is indignant because we disregard it and give the name of the street.

Mr. Q. is queer, and thinks it a good joke to impose upon the canvasser by giving the names of two or three fictitious occupants of his house, that he may afterwards be "down" upon the publisher for committing such a blunder.

Mr. R. adopts a very ingenious dodge to keep out of the Directory; having yesterday given his name to the canvasser, he calls to-day to say he is going out of town, and wishes to have his name omitted. But the next day the canvasser learns from his family that he has no idea of removing.

Mr. S., who lives in a Square, objects to being located in a Place of which the Square forms a part.

Mr. T. lives in a Place, which is part of a Square, but insists on being located in the Square. Now, the names of streets, places, and squares are not, happily, affairs of individual taste or caprice, but of legal enactment, and we should only recognize legal designations in giving the residences of citizens. If the legal designation of a street is "Washington square," we should so call it; if it is "Waverley place," we ought not to call it any thing else. But this point is not so essential as some others, and therefore for the sake of giving satisfaction to all parties, we have, this year, though we will not promise to be so obliging the next, allowed citizens to give their own designations to the Places and Squares in which they reside.

Mr. U. enters our office, a particular personal friend of the publisher, and, presuming upon that relation, asks to have his name left out of the Directory, to enable him to escape the annoyances of jury duty and militia fines. Being denied his unreasonable request, Mr. U. makes his exit, a declared enemy for life.

Mr. V. is violent for a different cause. He goes up to Forty-ninth street to see a person whom the Directory informed him lived in that street, but finds that he has removed the day before to Staten Island. He stops at the office on his way down to "blow us up" for putting him to so much trouble, and to express his contempt for people who publish a Directory which only serves to misdirect.

Mr. W., who, as a general rule, never buys the Directory, thinks the price altogether too high, and don't hesitate to express his conviction that "'Taint worth more nor fifty cents."

Mr. X. is naturally an extraordinary sort of person, and he takes the trouble of writing a sarcastic letter of three pages to say that "in his opinion it is not the proper way to make a correct Directory, to purposely leave out the name of one of the oldest residents in the city, since his name could easily have been learned by inquiring at his last place of business." This is a case which requires attending to, so we send down to Mr. X. the very canvasser who did inquire for him at his last place of business, without being able to learn any thing about him. Whereupon, the sarcastic Mr. X. confesses, without any sarcasms at all upon himself, that nobody is to blame.

Mr. Y. takes the liberty of calling in person to expostulate on the names of so many old residents, who lived for years in the same houses, being omitted. Mr. Y. is informed that the old residents in question probably "came a very old dodge," and gave the canvasser some fictitious names instead of their own. Oh! ah! Indeed! Mr. Y. "shouldn't wonder;" and that reminds him that the joint tenant of his own house did give the canvasser Mr. Y.'s name, but withheld his own, sure enough! Well, it is a strange world. Exit Mr Y.

Mr. Z. is zealously disobliging: he is a member of a firm, the name of which he can't withhold, because it is on the sign; but he positively and resolutely refuses to furnish any information whatever as to the names of the individuals composing it, and defies all creation to compel him.

These are only given as specimens of the actual annoyances which the compiler of the Directory has to contend with; but, in spite of all opposition, he is extremely happy in the conviction that the work approximates more nearly to perfection and completeness than it has ever done before.

We have on former occasions, alluded to the circumstance of many people either giving false information respecting their residences, or of withholding it altogether, under the mistaken idea that they could thereby escape from the performance of those duties which every good citizen should be ready to discharge. But this supposition is a fallacious one; there are other means of ascertaining the names and residences of citizens besides a reference to the Directory, and we have seen jury lists composed of names which have been purposely withheld from our canvassers. The following communication from the "Courier and Enquirer" contains valuable information for a very large class of persons who think to escape the responsibilities by a temporary residence out of town:

WHAT IS "LEGAL RESIDENCE" WITHIN THE MEANING OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THIS STATE.

This question is asked by many persons who for years have been resident of, and have done business in, this city. In the fall, winter, and spring, they keep house or board in town, and in the summer take board with their families in the country—some in this State, some in New Jersey and Connecticut.

Truth compels us to say, that the only real object of leaving town in the summer, on the part of many of them, is to raise a question, or rather a quibble, as to their residence, so as to avoid jury duty, military fines, and to escape onerous city taxation.

Let all such people understand, once for all, that they "take nothing" by such a course; neither do they in any way or manner escape or avoid any of the duties or responsibilities of "good citizens."

1st. They are legal voters.

2d. Taxable inhabitants.

3d. Liable to jury and military duty, within the meaning and express terms of the statute.

4th. Their transient stay, for a time, at a place, does not make them residents while there: 19 Wendell, 14; 4 Greenleaf, 231; 8 Wendell, 140; 1 Binney, 349; Constitution of the State of New York, art. 2, sec. 3.

Sailors and soldiers are residents and inhabitants of their place of residence at the time of their enlistment. By article 2, section 3 of the Constitution of this State, they neither gain nor lose a residence by absence while in the service of the United States.

Thus, for example: A regiment of United States soldiers may be stationed at Governor's Island, and remain there three years. Not a man of them is a voter in the district of which the island forms a part, unless at the time of enlistment such soldier was an inhabitant of the said district; and if any such soldier should swear in his vote, he would be liable to be sent to State Prison, and should he vote unchallenged, to be sent to Blackwell's Island.

The same with sailors. They can only vote at their place of residence at the time of their enlistment, or the place they last resided at previous to going to sea. For them to vote at any other place in this State is a crime.

No person can vote who is not an inhabitant of, and for thirty days a resident of the district in which he offers to vote. He must be able to vote for all the officers voted for or none. He cannot be eligible to vote for one officer, and not for all the officers voted for.

Extensive Printing Establishment!.....Average 150 Persons employed!!

JOHN F. TROW,

BOOK & JOB PRINTER,

BROADWAY, 377 & 379 NEW YORK.

The Proprietor of this Establishment would ask the attention of PUBLISHERS, AUTHORS, STATESMEN, and others, to his extended and improved facilities for executing every description of BOOK PRINTING, such as in the BEST style, and with such PROMPTNESS and ACCURACY, as will, he presumes, give perfect satisfaction, and he would remind his patrons and the public that his Establishment is furnished with every desirable improvement in Machinery, together with new and very large fonts of Type, with which he can undertake and perfect orders from any part of the United States on the shortest given contract. Having had more than thirty years' experience in the business, he is confident of meeting the tastes and expectations of all who may commit their works to his hands.

Works of Law, Medicine, Theology, Science; Miscellaneous Literature; Works in the Various Departments of Congress, or of State Legislatures; also, in Foreign Languages: Oriental, Occidental, Ancient or Modern,

OFFICE OF TROW'S NEW YORK CITY DIRECTORY.

OFFICE OF WILSON'S BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

PLAIN AND FANCY

JOB PRINTING,

Either in Colored Inks, Bronzes, Flock, or Crystal, in the first Style.

The Subscriber having entirely refitted up this Department with a choice assortment of TYPE and BORDERS, and having added several of the SWIFTEST STEAM PRESSES for securing expedition, his customers may confidently rely on their Orders being done PROMPTLY, NEATLY, and CORRECTLY.

STEREOTYPING AND ELECTROTYPING

DONE IN THE BEST AND MOST DURABLE MANNER.
